

British Flee from Burma As Japanese Push Ahead In Both China and India

Imperial Force of 5,000 Men Escapes from Trap after Destroying Their Heavy Equipment

By PRESTON GROVER
NEW DELHI, INDIA, May 15 (P)—Remnants of the British army from Burma straggled across the border into India today while the Japanese pushed westward behind them and simultaneously probed deeper into China.

A military spokesman said the British, now estimated to number hardly more than 5,000, had extricated themselves from a dangerous salient in the Chindwin valley of northwest Burma, escaping a Japanese attempt to get between them and the Indian frontier.

They had to destroy their heavy equipment, since they could not move it through the roadless wilderness where the streams were newly flooded by sudden rainstorms.

Letup in Fighting
No land fighting has been reported in that section of Burma since Monday. The spokesman said there had been no contact with the Japanese for twenty-four hours.

Another small British force left behind in the port town of Akyab to demolish work has been evacuated to India by sea.

British bombers again attacked Japanese barges on the Chindwin river, and U. S. army fliers from India bombed the Myittha airfield in north Burma yesterday for the second day in a row, but the Japanese were busily consolidating their hold on Burma.

Despite roundabout Axis reports relayed by the Vichy radio that the Japanese already were sixty-eight miles inside India on the way to Chittagong, dispatches from China and information here indicated the belief that the Japanese would concentrate in an effort to smash the ill-equipped armies of China.

Admit Loss of Tengyueh
The Chinese admitted loss of Tengyueh, important caravan town in western Yunnan province, and the threat to China appeared the most serious in nearly five years of stubborn warfare.

The Chinese said they still had some forces in Burma, within twenty-five miles of Japanese-held Myittha, and that another column was within striking distance of the border town of Wanting, but the Japanese appeared to be paying little heed to these units.

The Chinese expressed confidence that the situation would soon be stabilized, but the Japanese already have isolated China from her allies, have pushed 125 miles up the Burma road, and are sending other forces northward into China from the Thailand and French Indo-China border zones.

The main Japanese column was reported in combat with the Chinese at Hungmushu, on the west bank of the swift Salween river.

The east bank is held in strength by the Chinese, who have destroyed the river bridges to prevent a Japanese advance on toward Paoshan, fifty-five miles farther up the road.

U. S. Soldier Killed On Virgin Islands

JEFFERSON, Md., May 15 (P)—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ferrell said today they had been notified by the War Department that their 21-year-old son, Franklin Ferrell, died Sunday night at St. Croix, Virgin Islands, from stab wounds.

No particulars were given as to how the young soldier met death. The War Department's telegram, however, said that a letter of explanation would follow.

Mrs. Ferrell said she received a Mother's Day greeting from her son Sunday. He is survived by his parents and two younger brothers. The family originally came from Petersburg.

HENDERSONS GET A's

Leon Henderson, head of the Office of Price Administration, was to have to get along with "A" ration cards for his two cars. Although he drives to work his round trip falls under the six miles necessary to put him in the "B" class, Mrs. Henderson is shown holding the two "A" cards which entitle the Henderson family to six gallons of gasoline per week.

Gas Rationing Records To Be Given Publicity

Henderson To Authorize Local Boards To Take Early Action

WASHINGTON, May 15 (P)—The Office of Price Administration made things unpleasant for "gas hogs" tonight by deciding to blazon publicly the types of gasoline ration cards issued to eastern motorists.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson quickly fell in line with President Roosevelt's opinion, voiced at a press conference earlier in the day, that extra-allocation gasoline cards should be a matter of public record.

Henderson said an order would be issued tomorrow reversing the confidential status of gasoline rationing records and authorizing local rationing boards to "make available for public inspection as soon as practicable" all the records connected with gasoline rationing.

Exceptions Stipulated
Some exceptions were stipulated, concerning federal military and law enforcement officers and agents whose duties depend upon secrecy, but the exemptions did not cover senators and congressmen.

This meant that the legislators who obtained "X" cards entitling them to unrestricted gasoline purchases on the strength of their official duties, would be identified.

At the same time, OPA emphasized that all applications which motorists signed in obtaining cards would be subject to review by OPA officials. A fine of $10,000 or imprisonment for 10 years, or both, are provided for falsification of records connected with the ration plan.

The forms have been turned over to local rationing boards, OPA declared, and will be made "available for public inspection there as soon as the boards can put them in order." The inspection may be made at "any time when it will not interfere with board business."

OPA officials surmised that the shedding of publicity on "B-3" and "X" cardholders might result in considerable numbers of motorists who "fudged" on their gasoline needs at registration time turning them in for the garden-variety "A" card. The latter entitled them to only three gallons weekly under the emergency plan.

Debt of $6,000 A Family Likely, Tydings Asserts

Senator Sees "Good Probability" of a Sales Tax

BALTIMORE, May 15 (P)—Senator Millard E. Tydings said today if the national debt went to $200,000,000,000—"and it is headed that way and will reach there unless the war suddenly ends"—it would mean a debt of $6,000 per family in the United States.

He added he foresaw a 1942 federal tax bill to raise $25,000,000,000 a year and to include practically all forms of taxation, the sales tax among them, as a "good probability."

Addressing nearly 1,000 insurance salesmen attending the twenty-fourth annual Maryland and District of Columbia Life Insurance Congress, Tydings declared that "naturally, no expense necessary for the prosecution of the war should be curtailed, unless there was waste in that expense."

"With the debt going up it is a certainty that every avenue of revenue will be explored, and should be explored and tapped if necessary."

Must Raise All Possible
"It is not going to be a question so much as whether the tax is wise or not, but does it raise enough?"

Tydings asked what was the use of saving tires, gas and sugar, savings needed to win the war, if money, which is the equivalent was wasted.

He contended coffee, tea and wool would be rationed soon, as well as other things.

"If it is necessary to ration these things, it is just as necessary to cut out expenditures which are not necessary to winning the war."

Predicts Gigantic Army
He said the armed forces would eventually be increased, "it is believed to eight or nine or ten or twelve million men." He declared the "more we were extravagant the more of a burden would be placed on them when they returned."

"Let us take of this, their country, while they are away, so that we can turn it back to them, when they come home, as little encumbered as we can."

Tydings warned that once a power is given to the federal government it was next to impossible to get it back. A question had been put to him concerning the danger of the life insurance business getting under federal control.

The government may become so oppressive, that the people in the long run would lose more than they would gain by too great centralization of power in Washington," he said.

Maryland Health Program Aimed at Wartime Illness

State Department Prepared to Combat Possible Flu Epidemic

BALTIMORE, May 15 (P)—The well-organized and planned health program of the State Health Department will materially prevent wartime epidemics, despite the losses of medical and nursing service, Dr. Allan W. Freeman, professor of Public Health Administration, Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health, declared today.

Addressing the twenty-second annual conference of the Maryland State Department of Health, Dr. Freeman said "with the army requiring 40,000 of our doctors and the navy a similar number to carry on warfare on all fronts from Iceland to Australia and all the wastelands in between, we old and crippled members of the profession will have to carry on at home, and we will carry on."

No New Hazards
"Under the health program, and with we old men back in active harness again, our civilian population will encounter no new and unusual health hazards," he added.

Dr. Freeman said the "only serious epidemic possibility, in my mind, may be influenza, but it will not be as serious as during the World War I. At that time we knew of no means to combat it."

"We thumped the men, took their temperature, shot camphorated oil into their systems and hoped for the best. Today we have the sulphur drugs and other remedies with which to combat the ravages of this disease and pneumonia."

Conditions Favorable
At the opening of the conference, Dr. Robert H. Riley, director of the State Department of Health, said that during 1941 health conditions in the state were, on the whole, favorable.

He said there was an appreciable reduction in the total deaths from heart diseases as well as from other diseases associated with middle-aged and old-age groups.

The conference will continue through tomorrow. Health engineers of the department are also meeting in Baltimore.

U. S. Submarine Removed Wealth From Philippines

Took Gold and Securities from under Eyes of Japanese

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON, May 15 (P)—The navy produced the missing clue to one of the war's most fascinating mysteries today and thereby let it be known that an American submarine was the vessel which braved bombs and shore batteries to bring a vast amount of gold, silver and securities out of the Philippines before the Japanese could get their hands on it.

So secretly was the operation carried out that although the submarine spent the night of February 3 unloading anti-aircraft ammunition and loading gold and silver at Corregidor, the day of February 4 hiding off shore and a few minutes that night taking aboard securities, the enemy never found out what was going on.

Securities Moved Quickly
Much credit was given to High Commissioner Francis B. Sayre's staff for having collected so large a share of the Philippines' tangible wealth and moving it across embattled Manila Bay to Corregidor under the immediate direction of Woodbury Willoughby, Sayre's financial advisor. Both Sayre and Willoughby are now back here.

The submarine, the navy announced today, was commanded by Lt. Comdr. Frank W. Fenno, Jr., of Westminister, Mass. On March 20 Fenno was presented with an army distinguished service cross and his entire crew of six other officers and sixty-four men received army gold (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Henderson Talks On Changes in American Life

Says Collective Bargaining Collides with Stabilization of Income

NEW ORLEANS, May 15 (P)—Leon Henderson, federal price administrator, said here tonight that "today collective bargaining comes head-on in collision with stabilization of income."

He asked, however, in a speech prepared for delivery before the national conference of social work, tolerance while adjustments are made Henderson spoke of "the coming changes in our standard of living."

"One of the major freedoms of our way of life has been the freedom to bargain collectively for higher wages, and by that bargaining the American standard of life has had a steady measure of forward tread," he declared. "Today collective bargaining comes head-on in collision with stabilization of income."

In painting his picture of giving up consumer goods for war production, Henderson said the standard of living of the upper and middle income brackets will be reduced much more sharply than that of the lower one-third of our population.

"How far we will have to cut civilian production before the war is over, no one today can foresee perfectly," he said. "As far as we can see today none of us, barring such natural disasters as drought or flood, will be deprived of any of the goods really essential to our welfare; all of us will have enough to eat, we will all have adequate shelter and enough clothing and fuel to keep us warm and dry. In this assurance, let us remember, we are far more fortunate than any of the other nations actively participating in this war."

Henderson said he saw no prospect at this time of curtailing flour or bread or fresh fruit or vegetables. He declared more sugar might be found for home canning.

"With respect to meats, there may be considerably more of a squeeze—not because we are producing less in the aggregate, but because we must make heavy shipments, particularly of pork products to Europe and Russia," he warned.

Germans Driven Out of Kerch After Seizing Most of City; Russians Advance on Kharkov

German Reports Of Sinking Two Warships Doubted

Berlin Also Declares Several Other Ships Have Been Sunk

U. S. Cruiser and Destroyer Reported Torpedoed in North

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), May 15 (P)—Germany declared officially today that the Nazi air force had sunk a United States cruiser of the 9,100-ton Pensacola class and an American destroyer yesterday in attacks on an American squadron between the north cape of Norway and the Arctic island of Spitzbergen.

Further, the Germans credited their air force with sinking in the far north a 3,000-ton ice-breaker and a 2,000-ton merchant ship, hitting and setting on fire a freighter of 10,000 tons, and sinking four ships totaling 7,500 tons in a British south coast harbor.

(There was no comment from Washington on the claims, which might have been broadcast to draw out information on the disposition of the United States warships. However, the scene of the action as given in the German reports was the first hint that American fleet units were operating so far along the allied supply line to Murmansk and Archangel.)

German Radio Report
Quoting a German military source, the German radio said the United States ships were seen yesterday morning by German reconnaissance planes and the attack came at 5 p. m.

Despite a heavy anti-aircraft barrage, the German radio said, the bombers scored several direct hits on the cruiser, putting it in flames immediately.

The cruiser, it was said, sank about midnight. One of the four escorting destroyers picked up survivors and another of the four was fatally hit, the radio added.

Service Men's Dependent Plan Coolly Received

CIO Women's Auxiliaries Want Payments Increased Sharply

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
WASHINGTON, May 15 (P)—A suggestion from the CIO women's auxiliaries that proposed government payments to dependents of service men be increased sharply and that the Federal Security Administrator be empowered to augment them got a cool reception today from the House Military committee.

Concluding public hearings on legislation whereby dependents would receive part of the service men's pay plus additional sums from the government, committee members demonstrated a definite lack of enthusiasm for the CIO proposals.

Payments originally proposed, said Mrs. Eleanor Fowler, Washington, secretary-treasurer of the Congress of CIO Women's Auxiliaries, are "absolutely inadequate" and should be boosted substantially.

Would Retain $20 Figure
Mrs. Fowler told the committee that in some cases the original proposal would not permit dependents "to survive."

BIG CARGO VESSEL TORPEDOED IN GULF

Twenty-Seven Crew Members Killed in Bold Attack Off Mouth of the Mississippi River

NEW ORLEANS, May 15 (P)—One of the boldest attacks yet made by Axis submarines along the United States and gulf coasts—the destruction by torpedoes of a large cargo vessel a short distance off the mouth of the Mississippi river—was announced today by the navy.

Twenty-seven of the forty-one crew members were killed in the explosion and fire in the attack, one of the worst marine tragedies in the history of the Gulf of Mexico. The remaining crew members were critically or dangerously burned, with a single exception.

The attack by the German U-boat, which apparently was lying on the shallow bottom waiting for the ship to enter the river, occurred Tuesday afternoon, May 12, about a mile and a half from the river's mouth.

Hit by Three Torpedoes
While waiting to enter the river, the ship was hit by three torpedoes in rapid succession. Most of the crew never reached the water. Survivors who got to the windward rail jumped and were picked up in about half an hour. Only seven bodies were recovered and these were not immediately identified.

The ship was the fifth attacked in the Gulf of Mexico in less than a week, and the fourth lost. One ship was towed into port although badly damaged. Three lives had been lost in the previous attacks.

Rep. Young Says U. S. Will Take Over Martinique

Government Not Fooling with Vichy, Congressman Asserts

CLEVELAND, May 15 (P)—Rep. Stephen M. Young (D-Ohio) says America's "armed forces will surely take possession of Martinique."

Your government is not fooling in its negotiations with the Vichy French government," Young said in a speech transcribed for broadcast here tonight. "Our mission to Martinique has made definite proposals to the French high commissioner. It is likely he will refuse the proposals to the Vichy government and may be instructed to refuse our demand, which is that the United States take over Martinique."

"The armed forces of our nation will surely take possession of Martinique and incidentally of the hundred Brewster airplanes. The French may make a show of resistance."

"Without a doubt tankers from Martinique have refueled German submarines raiding our Atlantic and Gulf coasts and I know you who are listening in will applaud our action in taking over this French naval base."

Counter-Attack Forces Nazis To Get Out of Town

Heavy Rains Handicap Germany in Crimea Sector

Nazis Losses at Kharkov Reported To Be Enormous

LONDON, Saturday, May 16 (P)—German troops occupied all save the harbor area of the city of Kerch at the eastern end of the Crimea, but a Russian counter-attack promptly drove them out of the town, Reuters said today in a dispatch from "the German frontier."

Red troops began their counter-attack at Yenikale on the north-eastern extremity of the peninsula where they had been backed against Kerch strait, the dispatch said.

A heavy artillery barrage was laid down, and then Soviet tanks and infantry were reported to have overrun hastily-established Nazi defense points within the city.

Heavy rains were reported to be handicapping Axis mechanized movement outside Kerch.

400 Nazi Tanks Reported Destroyed

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
MOSCOW, Saturday, May 16 (P)—Red army troops beating a bloody path over the approaches to the great Ukraine industrial city of Kharkov have destroyed or damaged more than 400 Nazi tanks in three days and still are advancing on that key city to Germany's southern defenses, the Russians announced officially early today.

On the Kerch peninsula the Soviet midnight communiqué said Russian troops defending that approach to the Caucasus oil fields "continued stubborn fighting."

"In the Kharkov direction our troops carried out offensive battles and are advancing," the communiqué said. "Our troops destroyed 255 guns, damaged over 250 tanks, and brought down forty enemy planes."

No other significant changes occurred on the long Russian front, but in the Barents Sea the Russians reported their airmen sank three enemy ships, including a transport.

Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's battle-hardened veterans, supported by Russian-manned American and British tanks and planes were reported smashing hard at the German secondary lines before Kharkov.

250 Tanks Destroyed
The Russians said more than 250 tanks were damaged in yesterday's fighting in addition to at least 150 knocked out in the previous two days. A supplementary communiqué also said that Red airmen destroyed or damaged 100 more Nazi tanks Thursday on "various sectors of the front"—not making it clear whether these were in addition to the Kharkov offensive.

Obstacle To War Effort Removed

Minneapolis, May 15 (P)—R. E. Grimes, northwest field representative of the WPB auto grave yard section, sent one of his inspectors to Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., for a check on a yard salvaging scrapped automobiles. Today the inspector reported in:

"Owner shot wife. Shot son. Shot himself Sunday. Cars will move next week."

Steel for Air Raid Shelters Will Be Withheld until the War Is Over

OAKLAND, Calif., May 15 (P)—Alameda county wanted a gas decontamination center, just in case of gas bombs.

It was O.K. with the army. In fact, the army urged construction. So three months ago officials petitioned the War Production Board for priority rights to build the center. They said it would cost less than $2,000 and would require only a small amount of cement, steel and lumber. Eventually, they said, they hoped to build fifty throughout the county.

Today Maury Maverick, chief of the Bureau of Government requirements, through his assistant, George Blowers, advised Mrs. Mabel Smith, county purchasing agent, that "it has been the policy of the War Production Board and other defense agencies not to allow construction of air raid shelters, gas decontamination centers and similar buildings "due to the acute shortage of materials."

The letter suggested that "this subject be deferred until after the emergency."

District Attorney Ralph Hoyt, chairman of the defense council, wrote protests to Representatives Albert Carter and John H. Tolan and to Maverick.

What he asked in effect, would Alameda county or anyone else want a gas decontamination center "after the emergency?"

Bomber Crashes into Humboldt Bay And Sinks with Crew of Seven Men

EUREKA, Calif., May 15 (P)—A twin-engine army bomber, on patrol duty off the northern California coast, crashed unexplainedly into the southwestern up of Humboldt bay today and sank without leaving trace of its seven occupants.

Navy headquarters at San Francisco said the crew members were: Army Lieut. W. D. Frohlingdorf, Virginia, Minn., pilot.

Ensign A. C. Maher, naval reserve, New Orleans, co-pilot.

J. E. Jones, seaman second class, Radioman, Whitney, Nev.

Sgt. W. E. Andrews, Putnam, Tex.

Sgt. L. M. Christian, Shawnee, Okla.

Corp. S. E. Shaw, Richard, Va., a gunner.

The bomber, flying under navy supervision, was seen to fall into the water by the captain of a tanker. He reported to the coast guard, which immediately sent boats to the scene. They found particles of wreckage identified as pieces of the bomber.

Meals, Transportation, Lodging
The War Department will pay for meals, transportation and lodging involved in actual travel by these men back to home towns from army induction stations and reception centers, and for their return.

The arrangement will become effective June 15, or soon thereafter. Officials said the present procedure had been subject to some criticism. Under it, army centers are directed to grant, upon request, ten-day furloughs to selective service recruits immediately after their induction. Selective service headquarters said, however, that in some instances requests had been denied, and in other cases inductees were unable to pay their transportation home.

Makes Ceremonies Possible

Lack of Ships Could Lose War, Admiral Asserts

Even Alaska in Danger, Greenslade Says in Warning

OAKLAND, Calif., May 15 (AP)—The Philippines and Singapore fell to the enemy for lack of ships and "we may lose Australia, perhaps Alaska, for the same reason," Rear Admiral J. W. Greenslade warned today.

The commandant of the twelfth naval district appealed directly to 12,000 men at the Moore shipbuilding company for their utmost effort in ship production.

"We've got to win this war," he said. "And we will win it. But only if each one of us does his damndest — and then his double damndest."

War goods are piling up at the docks on both coasts and are backing up at some inland war plants. For example, 40,000 military trucks are standing at a single east coast port waiting for ships. At one inland plant there are 30,000 combat vehicles ready to be shipped. Thousands of trucks, intended for our forces in Australia and Ireland and elsewhere have been stored for lack of shipping to carry them where they are so badly needed.

"We lost the Philippines and Singapore because we did not have enough ships of both types, combatant and commercial. We may lose Australia, perhaps Alaska, for the same reason."

Counter-Attack

fifty miles) his troops had crossed the Donets river to the west and village after village outlying the great steel metropolis, said the official army organ Red Star, was falling to his arms.

The Moscow radio announced that among the newly captured positions were heights of strategic importance before Kharkov.

"Our troops are inflicting blow after blow on the enemy and making successful advances," said this announcement. "The offensive spirit of our troops is rising every minute. The operation is developing into an irresistible drive."

Win in Leningrad Area

On the Leningrad front, where another major Soviet offensive is under way, the Russians reported 2,000 Germans killed and twenty-three enemy tanks destroyed or captured.

German losses were described in official Soviet accounts as enormous; the roads leading from the broken German first line into Kharkov were littered with Nazi dead, smashed tanks and cannon.

Some 400 miles to the south of this great action—on the Kerch peninsula in the Crimea — other Russian forces were furiously fighting to hold their positions to which they had fallen back in their second forced retreat in that area.

Of that front, the afternoon communique of the Soviet command said merely that the most stubborn battling was continuing; of Kharkov it announced:

(Reports to London indicated he had broken the inner defenses of Kharkov in at least two places. Some diplomatic informants in London asserted they had heard that Hitler was so gravely worried at the turn of events that he had ordered his ambassador to Tokyo to make urgent representations to Japan for a Japanese attack on Siberian Russia.)

Youth

dressing an American Academy of Pediatrics meeting, asserted "children can take the war if their parents can take it—the reaction of children is like that of adults. How scared they are depends on what we tell them."

Praises Youth's Response

American youth's response to the war was described as the "greatest credit to them and to the human mind."

"After teaching them for twenty-five years that war is wrong and that only fools enter the army, we ask them to forget these teachings overnight. That's an example of how far we rear our children one way and expect them to live another," he added.

As for German youth—

"They can't be expected to unlearn immediately all the things they have been taught for twenty-five years. They're not going to say, 'we're wrong boys—you're right about the whole thing.' It has been estimated it will take another twenty-five years to reach them."

McNary Leading In Oregon Primary

PORTLAND, Ore., May 15 (AP)—Sen. Charles L. McNary, Republican leader in the Senate, led 2,094 votes to 429 in his race for re-nomination against Arthur M. Geary, Portland attorney, on the basis of the first forty precincts counted in today's primary election.

U. S. Submarine

stars for performing "an unusual and hazardous mission."

Collect Great Stores

The nature of the mission was not disclosed until today. As the navy told the story, efforts to prevent the Japs from getting the island's vast store of wealth began right after the war started December 7. From then until the submarine put in at Corregidor, Willoughby and his staff of Americans and Filipinos worked virtually day and night to collect the metals, currency and securities belonging to the Philippines commonwealth and to banks, mines and individuals.

As fast as shipments were collected Willoughby and his redoubtable crew took them to Corregidor, using whatever boats were available. The docks they were using were blasted by bombs and bombs fell in the water about them.

Finally they got all the valuables together. Paper currency, which can be reused in this country, was listed by number and then burned.

Arms Cargo Unloaded

On the night of February 3 the submarine, poking cautiously through waters in range of Japanese shore batteries around Cavite, arrived at Corregidor. Its cargo of anti-aircraft ammunition was unloaded and ton after ton of gold and silver was placed aboard. The "stevedores" for this loading were army and navy officers, soldiers, members of Sayre's staff, officials of the Philippine commonwealth government and Filipino workmen.

The work went on until 4 a. m. Then as dawn was at hand the sub arranged a rendezvous with an auxiliary vessel in Manila Bay the next night. It put out about three miles and submerged to spend the daylight in deep water.

When darkness fell the little auxiliary sailed from Corregidor to the meeting place with her load of securities. The submarine did not appear at once. Willoughby said "anxiety was written on every face—minutes that seemed like hours dragged by."

Then the dark bulk of the undersea craft pushed through the surface a short distance from the auxiliary.

"It took about twenty minutes to transfer the securities," Willoughby said. "Then Lt. Comdr. Ferno uttered a remark I will never forget. His crew had gone below and he was standing on the conning tower preparatory to giving the order to submerge."

"Any passengers?" he asked cheerfully. Any of us would have been glad to get aboard that submarine, but it was not for us to leave. We had to tell him no."

The sub carried her cargo of wealth to a Pacific base where it was transferred to a cruiser which took it to San Francisco.

Big Cargo

the navy said, an explosion had shaken the east jetty of the south-west passage of the Mississippi's mouth. Damage was slight and no menace to navigation was created. The navy said it had not determined whether it was a stray torpedo, a torpedo fired deliberately by an enemy sub, or some other cause.

Periscope Sighted

All the survivors except one reported they never saw the submarine which struck with its first torpedo at 3:05 p. m. central war-time. One survivor reported sighting the periscope. While the crew were taking stations two more torpedoes struck swiftly and the ship went out of control, eventually sinking in 100 feet of water.

Mike Kuzma, of St. Paul, Minn., the least seriously burned survivor, was the hero of the sinking. Although he had no lifebelt he managed to hold up Bert K. McDowell, of Lima, O., and Turner O. Hanley of Morales, Tex., until taken aboard a rescue boat.

Each has four planes launched by catapults and both were built in New York. The Pensacola in 1930 and the Salt Lake City in 1929.)

(The destroyer was not identified further.)

DNB said the ice-breaker and the 2,000-ton merchant vessel were bombed in a fjord at Spitzbergen, the large Norwegian island 400 miles off northernmost Norway.

Canadian, British and Norwegian shock troops last September destroyed coal mines on Spitzbergen and removed several hundred anti-Nazi miners and their families.)

The 10,000-ton freighter was reported to have been set on fire near the Arctic coast north of Murmansk. The German high command said the ship "burned from stem to stern."

The ships in the British harbor were sunk during a night raid, the high command said, in which planes were low in the face of a hail of anti-aircraft and violent anti-aircraft fire.

State and Local Securities Free From U. S. Taxes

House Ways and Means Committee Votes against Assessing Them

By DONALD A. YOUNG

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP)—By two overwhelming votes, the House Ways and Means committee turned down today the administration's request that the income from state and local securities be made subject to federal taxation.

Members said that there was almost no support for removing the tax exemption for outstanding securities and that a two-thirds majority opposed making future issues taxable.

Secretary Morgenthau, presenting an overall $7,510,000,000 tax program to Congress March 3, said removal of the tax exemption would bring $200,000,000 into the treasury.

Says Rich Are Sheltered

"The holders of tax-exempt securities are obtaining what are essentially windfall profits in a time of national sacrifice," he told the committee. "Through tax-exempt securities, persons with large tax-paying ability find themselves in a sheltered position."

But many witnesses, as well as the committee members themselves, countered with the argument that the fiscal position of states, counties, towns and cities might be impaired seriously if their bonds, sold on the assumption—perhaps an agreement—that they would not be taxed by the federal government should suddenly lose that attraction.

Local Securities Different

Morgenthau said that "unfortunately, tax-exemption clauses" appeared in outstanding federal securities and could not be violated. In the case of state and local authorities, he argued, "there has never been any contract or moral commitment" between the federal government and those holders.

The committee's action brought to $840,000,000 the total reductions it had made in Morgenthau's original program, and members said they would fall short on some other items.

Gas Rationing

standing" of the regulations might exchange them for proper cards and said that hundreds of persons already had offered to exchange them.

When a reporter asked President Roosevelt today whether rationing cards should be a subject of public knowledge, he replied with another question:

Why not?

He declined to express an opinion on a suggestion that ration card holders be required to post a sticker on their windshields showing what kind of card they had. He joined in the laugh when newsmen said there might be some rock-throwing if holders of X cards showed up at ball games.

The row on Capitol Hill over the X card issued subsided, for the present at least, as the Senate buried, by a vote of 66 to 2, a resolution whereby members would have pledged themselves to waive any special gasoline privileges.

Senator Downey (D-Calif.) had offered the resolution, only to be met by a barrage of angry criticism by senators who said he might just as well have asked them to promise not to rob banks.

X Card for Barkley

Senator Barkley (D-Ky.) took the position that the resolution was a reflection upon the honor of the Senate. On the showdown only Downey and Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) voted for the resolution.

A number of members of Congress drew the unlimited X-cards. Some of them have since turned them in for more limited cards. But others still retain them. Barkley said:

"I'm going to apply for an X-card and that can go on all the front pages. But I won't use a gallon more of gasoline than I had a B card. I'm just going to use enough to carry out my duties."

She pointed out that under provisions of the pending bill a dependent wife with two children would receive a total of $60 a month, made up of $20 from her husband's pay and $40 from the government. Under the CIO recommendations, the same family would receive $90.

Mrs. Fowler urged that the maximum allotment from the soldier's pay be retained at $20, but that the government allowance be doubled from $20 to $40 for a wife and increased from $10 to $15 for each child.

McNutt Plan Backed

The auxiliary went on record as favoring the recommendation of Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt that he be permitted to give additional allowances to dependents in hardship cases. It was the only group that actively backed the McNutt Plan. The army, navy and selective service system had refused to approve or oppose it in earlier testimony.

Chairman May (D-Ky.) and other committee members said the additional cost of Mrs. Fowler's proposal would be prohibitive, and predicted the McNutt proposal also would be turned down when closed sessions are held next week.

Broken Bolt Causes 5 Factories To Close

HILLSDALE, Mich., May 5 (AP)—

A broken bolt, five inches long and seven-eighths of an inch thick and worth twenty-five cents, caused a shutdown today of five factories here making munitions.

The bolt fastened a piston to the plunger in the Diesel generator at the Hillsdale municipal power plant. Because a steam turbine which would have furnished substitute power was closed for repairs, the city had to depend on the power provided by three small turbines.

After seven hours the bolt was replaced and 800 workers returned to their jobs.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The battles for Kerch and Kharkov in southwestern Russia necessarily hold the war news spotlight but word that a gallant British Imperial force some 5,000 strong has escaped a menacing Japanese trap in Burma gives a welcome twist to reports from the Oriental battle area.

It had appeared there was little chance of escape for that remnant of the pitifully small force of British and Indian troops which fought as courageous a rear-guard action all the way from Rangoon to India as British history records.

Equipment Lost

As it was, the survivors got away, like the men of the BEP at Dunkirk, with only such fighting equipment as they could carry on their backs or in their hands.

With British evacuation of Burma is all but complete. Eastward, by every indication, Chinese forces are mobilizing in strength

"X" Cards a Mistake, Vandenberg Asserts

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) told the senate today that the "OPA made a serious mistake by issuing any 'X' cards for unlimited purchases" of gasoline. The Michigan senator said each card should have been "geared to the necessity of the individual user."

"If they had done this, they would have saved a lot of gas and a lot of argument," Vandenberg added.

Agreeing, Senator Byrd (D-Va.) said he favored full publicity on all of those "who got the X cards."

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) said it was a bad mistake to issue any unlimited gasoline cards, adding that he expected gasoline would be rationed in the entire United States by July 1 in order to save rubber.

Wheeler predicted that bootlegging of gasoline eventually would be greater than "bootlegging was during prohibition."

Lack of Ships Could Lose War, Admiral Asserts

Even Alaska in Danger, Greenslade Says in Warning

OAKLAND, Calif., May 15 (AP)—The Philippines and Singapore fell to the enemy for lack of ships and "we may lose Australia, perhaps Alaska, for the same reason," Rear Admiral J. W. Greenslade warned today.

The commandant of the twelfth naval district appealed directly to 12,000 men at the Moore Shipbuilding Company for their utmost effort in ship production.

"We've got to win this war," he said. "And we will win it. But only if each one of us does his damndest — and then his double damndest."

"War goods are piling up at the docks on both coasts and are backing up at some inland war plants. For example, 40,000 military trucks are standing at a single east coast port waiting for ships. At one inland plant there are 30,000 combat vehicles ready to be shipped. Thousands of trucks, intended for our forces in Australia and Ireland and elsewhere have been stored for lack of shipping to carry them where they are so badly needed."

"We lost the Philippines and Singapore because we did not have enough ships of both types, combatant and commercial. We may lose Australia, perhaps Alaska, for the same reason."

Counter-Attack

fifty miles) his troops had crossed the Donets river to the west and village after village outlying the great steel metropolis, said the official army organ Red Star, was falling to his arms.

The Moscow radio announced that among the newly captured positions were heights of strategic importance before Kharkov.

Win in Leningrad Area

On the Leningrad front, where another major Soviet offensive is under way, the Russians reported 2,000 Germans killed and twenty-three enemy tanks destroyed or captured.

German losses were described in official Soviet accounts as enormous; the roads leading from the broken German first line into Kharkov were littered with Nazi dead, smashed tanks and cannon.

Some 400 miles to the south of this great action—the Kerch peninsula in the Crimea — other Russian forces were furiously fighting to hold their positions to which they had fallen back in their second forced retreat in that area.

Of that front, the afternoon communiqué of the Soviet command said merely that the most stubborn battling was continuing at Kharkov it announced.

(Reports from Axis sources indicated that Timoshenko also had thrown in a heavy attack along the north coast of the Sea of Azov against the German position at Pokrovsk, some fifteen miles from Taganrog, in an effort to cut the German wing protecting the Kerch action while he hurled the bulk of his mighty force at Kharkov to the north.

(Reports to London indicated he had broken the inner defenses of Kharkov in at least two places. Some diplomatic informants in London asserted they had heard that Hitler was so gravely worried at the turn of events that he had ordered his ambassador to Tokyo to make urgent representations to Japan for a Japanese attack on Siberian Russia.)

Youth

dressing an American Academy of Pediatrics meeting, asserted "children can take the war if their parents can take it—the reaction of children is like that of adults. How scared they are depends on what we tell them."

Praises Youth's Response

American youth's response to the war was described as the "greatest credit to them and to the human mind."

"After teaching them for twenty-five years that war is wrong and that only fools enter the army, we ask them to forget these teachings overnight. That's an example or how far we rear our children one way and expect them to live another," he added.

As for German youth—"They can't be expected to learn immediately all the things they have been taught for twenty-five years. They're not going to say, 'we're wrong boys—you're right about the whole thing.' It has been estimated it will take another twenty-five years to re-teach them."

McNary Leading In Oregon Primary

U. S. Submarine

Collect Great Stores

The nature of the mission was not disclosed until today. As the navy told the story, efforts to prevent the Japs from getting the island's vast store of wealth began right after the war started December 7. From then until the submarine put in at Corregidor, Willoughby and his staff of Americans and Filipinos worked virtually day and night to collect the metals, currency and securities belonging to the Philippines commonwealth and to banks, mines and individuals.

As fast as shipments were collected Willoughby and his redoubtable crew took them to Corregidor, using whatever boats were available. The docks they were using were blasted by bombs and bombs fell in the water about them.

Finally they got all the valuables together. Paper currency, which can be reissued in this country, was listed by number and then burned.

Arms Cargo Unloaded

On the night of February 3 the submarine, poking cautiously through waters in range of Japanese shore batteries around Cavite, arrived at Corregidor. Its cargo of anti-aircraft ammunition was unloaded and ton after ton of gold and silver was placed aboard. The "stevedores" for this loading were army and navy officers, soldiers, members of Sayre's staff, officials of the Philippine commonwealth government and Filipino workmen.

The work went on until 4 a. m. Then as dawn was at hand the sub arranged a rendezvous with an auxiliary vessel in Manila Bay the next night. It put out about three miles and submerged to spend the daylight in deep water.

When darkness fell the little auxiliary sailed from Corregidor to the meeting place with her load of securities. The submarine did not appear at once. Willoughby said "anxiety was written on every face — minutes that seemed like hours dragged by."

Then the dark bulk of the undersea craft pushed through the surface a short distance from the auxiliary.

"It took about twenty minutes to transfer the securities," Willoughby said. "Then Lt. Comdr. Fenne uttered a remark I will never forget. His crew had gone below and he was standing on the conning tower preparatory to giving the order to submerge."

"Any passengers?" he asked cheerfully. Any of us would have been glad to get aboard that submarine, but it was not for us to leave. We had to tell him no."

The sub carried her cargo of wealth to a Pacific base where it was transferred to a cruiser which took it to San Francisco.

Big Cargo

the navy said, an explosion had shaken the east jetty of the south-west passage of the Mississippi mouth. Damage was slight and no menace to navigation was created. The navy said it had not determined whether it was a stray torpedo, a torpedo fired deliberately by an enemy sub, or some other cause.

Periscope Sighted

All the survivors except one reported they never saw the submarine which struck with its first torpedo at 3:05 p. m. central war-time. One survivor reported sighting the periscope. While the crew were taking stations two more torpedoes struck swiftly and the ship went out of control, eventually sinking in 100 feet of water.

Mike Kuzma, of St. Paul, Minn., the least seriously burned survivor, was the hero of the sinking. Although he had no lifebelt he managed to hold up Bert K. McDowell, of Lima, O., and Turner O. Hanley, of Morales, Tex., until taken aboard a rescue boat.

German Reports

"The Pensacola class consists of the Pensacola and the Salt Lake City, each with a crew normally of 953 men. The vessels carry ten eight-inch guns as their main armament. Each has four planes launched by catapults and both were built in New York. The Pensacola in 1930 and the Salt Lake City in 1932.

"The destroyer was not identified further."

DNB said the ice-breaker and the 2,000-ton merchant vessel were bombed in a fjord at Spitsbergen, the large Norwegian island 400 miles off northernmost Norway.

Canadian, British and Norwegian shock troops last September destroyed coal mines on Spitsbergen and removed several hundred anti-Nazi miners and their families.)

The 10,000-ton freighter was reported to have been set on fire near the Arctic coast north of Murmansk. The German high command said the ship "burned from stem to stern."

The ships in the British harbor were sunk during a night raid, the high command said, in which planes poured low in the face of a barrage and violent anti-aircraft fire.

State and Local Securities Free From U. S. Taxes

House Ways and Means Committee Votes against Assessing Them

By DONALD A. YOUNG

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP)—By two overwhelming votes, the House Ways and Means committee turned down today the administration's request that the income from state and local securities be made subject to federal taxation.

Members said that there was almost no support for removing the tax exemption for outstanding securities and that a two-thirds majority opposed making future issues taxable.

Secretary Morgenthau, presenting an overall $7,610,000,000 tax program to Congress March 3, said removal of the tax exemption would bring $200,000,000 into the treasury.

Says Rich Are Sheltered

"The holders of tax-exempt securities are obtaining what are essentially windfall profits in a time of national sacrifice," he told the committee. "Through tax-exempt securities, persons with large tax-paying ability find themselves in a sheltered position."

But many witnesses, as well as the committee members themselves, countered with the argument that the fiscal position of states, counties, towns and cities might be impaired seriously if their bonds sold on the assumption—perhaps an agreement—that they would not be taxed by the federal government should suddenly lose that attraction.

Local Securities Different

Morgenthau said that "unfortunately, tax-exemption clauses" appeared in outstanding federal securities and could not be violated. In the case of state and local authorities, he argued, "there has never been any contract or moral commitment" between the federal government and those holders.

The committee's action brought to $840,000,000 the total reduction it had made in Morgenthau's original program, and members said they would fall short on some other items.

standing" of the regulations might exchange them for proper cards and said that hundreds of persons already had offered to exchange them.

When a reporter asked President Roosevelt today whether rationing cards should be a subject of public knowledge, he replied with another question:

Why not?

Stickers Suggested

He declined to express an opinion on a suggestion that ration card holders be required to post a sticker on their windshields showing what kind of card they had. He joined in the laugh when newsmen said there might be some rock-throwing if holders of X cards showed up at ball games.

Senator Barkley (D-Ky.) took the position that the resolution was a reflection upon the honor of the Senate. On the showdown vote Downey and Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) voted for the resolution.

A number of members of Congress drew the unlimited X-cards. Some of them have since turned them in for more limited cards. But others still retain them. Barkley said:

"I'm going to apply for an X-card and that can go on all the front pages. But I won't use a gallon more of gasoline than if I had a B card. I'm just going to use enough to carry out my duties."

"X" Cards a Mistake, Vandenberg Asserts

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) told the senate today that the "OPA made a serious mistake by issuing any 'X' cards for unlimited purchases" of gasoline.

The Michigan senator said each card should have been "geared to the necessity of the individual user."

"If they had done this, they would have saved a lot of gas and a lot of argument," Vandenberg added.

Agreeing, Senator Byrd (D-Va.) said he favored full publicity on all of those "who got the X cards."

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) said it was a bad mistake to issue any unlimited gasoline cards, adding that he expected gasoline would be rationed in the entire United States by July 1 in order to save rubber.

Wheeler predicted that bootlegging of gasoline eventually would be greater than "bootlegging was during prohibition."

Mrs. Byron Drafts Herself To Run a Second Term

MRS. KATHERINE E. BYRON, member of the House of Representatives for the Sixth Maryland district, has come out for a second term, apparently forgetting that when she was elected to succeed her late husband she said that she wanted only to serve out his unexpired term.

Perhaps Mrs. Byron can be forgiven for thus reversing her attitude. We're in a war and it is her duty to support President Roosevelt, she says, wherefore, after talking with her friends in the district, she decided to announce her candidacy.

In her announcement, Mrs. Byron indicated her belief that some way or other her re-election is vitally important in winning the war and that it is up to the voters of her district to let her help win it.

"It has been my privilege to loyally support our great president, Franklin D. Roosevelt," she stated, "and I want my constituents to have the opportunity to support me so that I may continue to serve my country. It is the duty of every man, woman and child to do their part during this anxious and perilous time."

Two observations seem pertinent in connection with Representative Byron's decision. One is that it was not unexpected. The build-up on the part of those esconced in Washington has been generous, glamorous, even exciting, and there has been little disposition there to worry over the sacrifices the common people have been asked to undergo. A taste of official influence inspires a hunger for more. No, Mrs. Byron's decision to run again is quite natural as well as expected.

The other observation is something that will be duly brought out in the campaign. This is a reminder of the fact that Mrs. Byron does not possess any exclusive right to serve her country by representing the people of the Sixth district in the House, this being, under our constitutional processes, extended freely to any other qualified aspirant who may desire so to serve. From what has been heard, there are several others on the Democratic side who think they could do somewhat more for the district than Mrs. Byron has been doing, or has failed to do; while the Republicans have plenty of available material and can be expected to trot out an outstanding candidate of the same mind.

In passing, it is pertinent to note that among the things the present representative has failed to do during her incumbency, which, by the way, was conferred upon her as a sympathetic gesture, has been her conspicuous failure to respond in any manner to the popular demand that nonessential expenditures of the federal government be reduced in accordance with the specific recommendations repeatedly made by Senator Byrd and others. In fact, the negative list appears considerably longer than the affirmative, but, as noted, we shall hear more about this as the campaign waxes along.

Total War and Manpower

THE IMPACT of total war on American civilian life will reveal itself on a colossal scale within the next six months. In that short period, the United States faces the biggest task of occupational change in its history.

The fact that 12,000,000 men must be moved from their present positions to the armed forces or to war production jobs before the end of 1942, as outlined by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director of selective service, is apparent from statistics regarding the manpower requirements of the combatant services and war production in the current year.

General Hershey said the number of men in the armed forces must be doubled by the end of this year and that the number of men who were working in war production on January 1 last must be tripled before the end of 1942. At present there is no direct legislation for transferring men from non-essential jobs to war jobs, but legal sanction for such action may be expected if a shortage in defense labor develops.

That the government prefers that men act voluntarily in acquiring positions where they can aid the war effort to the greatest degree may be inferred from General Hershey's remarks. General Hershey released a number of obvious hints regarding what is expected of men and management in the immediate future.

Asserting that men with dependents will not be called for military duty before 1943 he added that a majority of these will not be called then "if they will search their souls and fit themselves into the pattern as useful citizens having a vital part in the war effort."

Management was advised by General Hershey to begin now the replacement of "priceless youth" with older men and women in order that the young men may be taken into the armed services. Persons capable of doing more or better work in some other job must be upgraded, he asserted.

Concerning 1943, General Hershey said he could not even predict what the needs of essential industry will be by that time. As the effect of total war becomes more and more apparent, the determination of Americans to see it through to final victory at the earliest possible period unquestionably will increase.

Not only do Americans abhor the thought of defeat with its inevitable slavery, but they do not wish to live in a world in which there would be recurring wars of this type. Nothing save a clear-cut victory by the United Nations can assure the prevention of similar wars in the future.

Calling All Songsmiths

THERE IS ALWAYS SOMETHING that something ought to be done about. The particular something in need of treatment at the moment is the Tin Pan Alley war effort, which has fallen many bars behind schedule.

A glance at the hit parade list from week to week since Pearl Harbor has not contained one war hit worthy of mention, not to mention singing.

Of the whole sorry lot, "Remember Pearl Harbor" has probably become as nearly popular as any. This is by reason of no inherent excellence but because of the utter lack of soul-stirring competition. Pearl Harbor is worthy of far better musical treatment than this watered down ditty, which might, if skillfully played or sung, pass muster for a second-rate marching song of a second-rate high school.

There is guaranteed safety in the prediction that "Goodbye, Mama, I'm Off to Yokohama," and "You're a Sap, Mr. Jap," will not survive after this war, if they have not already failed to survive this war to date. "Any Bonds Today" is "cute" in a listless sort of a way but it is difficult to imagine that anyone will seriously defend the proposition that this song has sold one $25 bond.

So far the armed forces have marched to the tunes of yesterwars, and kept step to the service standbys. Not that these are not good, rousing numbers, but certainly Tin Pan Alley has a patriotic duty to contribute its untalented bit in the current war instead of grinding out such sedative, sentimental salads as "From Taps to Revellie."

After all, the hours not included in this song are slightly important for the boys on the shooting line as well as the folk on the home front.

"X" May Mark the Spot Where a Congressman Was

MEMBERS of the Senate and the House are all in a dither over criticism hurled at them over their "X" gas cards. In fact the yelping of the proletariat seems to be louder than when the members of Congress voted themselves pensions.

Our lawmakers don't seem to know what to do about it, but from all indications they'll have to go on record as to whether they think they are entitled to more motor fuel than some of their constituents. That may be bad for some of them.

With all of the House and a third of the Senate coming up for re-election this fall, the question of gasoline is going to be aired quite a bit in the public prints and it is entirely possible that some of our congressmen will find that "X" marks the spot where a congressman was, instead of being a notice that he can drive up to a gas station and say "Fill 'er up!"

If the Royal Air Force keeps up its current pace Hitler can soon boast that Germany has the world's greatest supply of rubbish.

The Bong of Wong has declared war on the Japs. We hope he hits 'em a bang and a whang.

Eat What You Ordered

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Did you ever in a restaurant wish you'd ordered something else? You went in, hungry. You sat down at a table.

You ran your eyes up and down the columns. You ordered ham and eggs and a cup of coffee. And then you waited. And as you waited you saw waiters going by carrying trays, carrying filled orders of other patrons. One waiter carried a steak and onions and hashed brown potatoes. Another brought fried chicken and green peas and mashed potatoes to the man at the next table. And you wish, as you watched, that you'd ordered something else.

Everything that passed looked better, more enticing, than the food you had ordered. And if you could, if it weren't too much trouble, you'd change your order to a big steak with onions or a platter of fried chicken.

Well, it's a good thing you can't change so easily. Because while you waited for the chicken or the steak you'd see a waiter going by with a platter of golden eggs and a fragrant slice of ham and you'd be all upset again. Or course you would.

It's better, I'm a-thinking, to take what you have ordered and to eat it. Because it's probably what you want and perhaps what you need. You've ordered it. You eat it. When you get it, you'll enjoy it. When it's before you, you'll forget all about the fried chicken and thick steaks of this world and you'll eat with pleasure the ham and eggs that lie before you.

And I'm a-thinking, too, that if we're wise we'll do our best to enjoy the kind of life that's set before us—even if we didn't exactly order it. We needn't try with it. We shouldn't fuss about it. We should not be envying every life that passes by and is different from ours. We can, instead, be enjoying our own. I've seen plenty of fine human beings enjoying lives that didn't look exactly palatable to me, that I would never have ordered for myself—and if others can eat what they haven't ordered, I guess we others can accept the kind of life we are getting and be nourished by it.

Union Membership Is Permanent Now, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Once a member of a union always a member—there is no chance for withdrawal.

This startling conclusion has been reached by a number of labor relations experts who have been making a study of the texts of virtually all of the constitutions of national and international unions.

The War Labor board has insisted that there is a right of withdrawal for a worker at the time when a union contract with the employer expires. But no such provision can be found in any of the important labor union constitutions. If a worker changes his trade and goes into another line he can get an honorable withdrawal but if he fails to pay dues or dislikes any of the union policies he is in a straitjacket that can either force his dismissal from his present job or prevent him from getting another.

While this situation may come as a surprise to most people unfamiliar with the true meaning of the maintenance of membership clause being forced upon American employers by the war labor board under the guise of wartime necessity, the labor leaders themselves have no illusions about the so-called right of withdrawal from a union.

Discussed by Hagen

Thus, for instance, Harry Hagen, vice president of the A. F. of L.'s Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers, discusses the issue in one of the labor union periodicals. Answering a critic who asked if a worker could not refuse to be a party to racketeering union policies and stop contributing dues for undesirable purposes, Mr. Hagen writes:

"We might reply that in such conditions would arise, under those circumstances, a member should get together with other rank and file members and proceed to oust those union officers responsible for any criminal practices by a vote of the membership, or as a last resort, appeal to the proper civil authorities of the community to correct them. I wonder if the many people in this state who didn't like the corrupt practices of our legislature because of that condition could refuse to pay taxes and have nothing to do with the state government. . . . And just who endowed this dissenting imaginary union member with such wisdom and perspicacity that he alone would be the judge, prosecutor and jury of his union's policies and its legally elected officers that he could change the rules of the game to suit his fancies?"

A Sort of Government

The conception prevails, it will be observed, among labor leaders that the union is a sort of government and not a private organization based upon the free will of the members to join or withdraw as they wish.

Minorities are not able to express their protest by resigning from a union. They must accept the rule of the majority even though it binds them as individuals indefinitely to a union, and that means in many cases they can no longer get a job without the union's backing.

The War Labor board has been taken in by the union-maintenance philosophy and its public members have been persuaded to believe that the issue is one of merely joining or withdrawing. The unions do not accept such an interpretation. Once a worker joins a union he can only refuse to pay dues, and if the employer continues to pay it for him, that's a subsidy. If the employer doesn't pay it, then the worker goes on the bad standing list and can be barred from jobs in other plants where closed shop contracts are in effect.

SHOOTING THE WORKS

New Tax Measure Balances Pay Boost For Soldiers but Jolts Wage Earners

By MARK SULLIVAN

Read two actions in the House of Representatives on the same day, and grasp the meaning. By one action, the House adopted an increase of $20 a month in the pay of men in the armed services (bringing the total to $50).

"Well," replied Mr. Davis, "I can give you a copy of the constitution. It has certain provisions about—if I can remember them—it provides that if a man's dues, if he is delinquent for three months, he is automatically put on a delinquent list. That's not exactly the phraseology but the substance of it—he is dropped from the active list. He can restore himself to active membership by paying a fine of $15. . . ."

Only Method

"Well, is the only method by which a man might voluntarily leave the union to refuse to pay his dues?" was the next question. "Well," responded Mr. Davis, "it is the only one I can think of now."

Here is the head of the War Labor board admitting to the American people that only by refusing to pay dues and running the risk of being blacklisted in all future jobs can a man withdraw from a union he has once joined. And the government of the United States is today dictating to the American workers and their employers that maintenance of membership must be accepted by them as a national policy, even though there is nothing in the long line of precedents of constitutional law justifying such an abridgment of the Bill of Rights.

A Breach in the Home Defense

From the Christian Science Monitor

War plays subtle tricks. It strikes where least expected. Sometimes the attack is far from the field of battle, as when war sends its spearhead of hysteria deep into the juvenile mentality and young gangs run amuck.

Recently a band of 13-to-16-year-old boys were apprehended for a series of nearly fifty robberies. This happened in a city in Massachusetts. It is not an isolated case. Similar things are happening all over the nation.

Juvenile delinquency is on the climb. In England during the first year of war, juvenile delinquency among children under fourteen jumped forty-one per cent.

There is an undercurrent of tension these days. The children sense it. Older brothers are off to war. Parents are occupied with war work or civilian defense jobs. Relaxation of discipline occurs in many homes. Everyone seems to have "war work" except the youngsters—these 13-to-16-year-olds. They are old enough to feel the war, too young to have a part in it.

Fortunately the danger to the community is recognized. Settlement houses, youth organizations, public playgrounds, and camps are speeding up a major offensive against the menace of wartime delinquency. It will take concerted effort to mend this breach in the home front.

Here, surely, is an opportunity for a civilian defense job of the most vital sort.

President Roosevelt, in his recent radio speech, said the tax law should be so written that no person will have an income of more than $25,000 a year after his taxes are paid. The new tax bill will not go that far, but will go as near to it as is practicable. Actually, the number of such incomes has already been made small by the existing tax law. Estimates have been made of the amount of money the government would get, additional to what it already gets, if the new tax law lived up, literally, to the standard Mr. Roosevelt proposed. The estimates vary, some saying the amount of money thus procured would pay the government's expenses for four days, others saying twelve days.

Twenty dollars a month is $240 a year. Multiply that by the number of men in the armed services. How many there will be, ultimately, we can't know yet. But call it six million—five million in the army, one million in the navy. Six million times $240 is about a billion and a half dollars a year. This is just a raise in pay. It is but one item, a comparatively small item, in the total cost of the war.

On the same day, the House Ways and Means committee adopted a plan for increasing the government's income. It increased the taxes on small incomes. By this action, if it goes through Congress, married persons will be taxed on all their income above $1200. (At present their exemption is $1500.) Single persons will be taxed on all their income above $750. (At present, their exemption is $750.) The extra revenue the government will get is estimated at about $1,200,000,000.

Actions Balance

These two actions, it will be seen, more or less balance each other. A billion and a half new outlay—and a billion and a quarter new income. This is ideal management of the government's fiscal affairs. It conforms to a rule for legislative bodies rather too ideal to be always practicable—every time you vote an appropriation, votes the added taxation to pay for it.

Unfortunately, this present conformance to the rule is exceptional. That the rule is not lived up to is not greatly the fault of Congress—it is much more the fault of the facts. This war is going to cost, the present year and as many future years as the war lasts, vastly more than can possibly be raised by taxation. For much of the outgo, we must depend on borrowing.

In another respect the action of the House, in taking more tax money from persons having relatively low incomes, is a frank recognition of reality. Congress wants new money. So Congress goes where most of the new money is—that is, in the pockets of persons having relatively low incomes. To point this out may not be popular. For Congress to act upon it takes both courage and sense.

Dividends To Increase

By the war, the government is creating a vast quantity of new money, paying it out for munitions and other war expenditures. Of this new money, much goes to corporations and business men. It goes there, but won't stay there. For taxing this part of the new money, and taxing it heavily, Congress has already acted or is about to. Already the Ways and Means committee, writing the new tax bill, has decided to take, in taxes, ninety-four per cent of the excess profits made by corporations and business men as a result of the war. Of such profits as remain, and may be paid out in dividends to individual stockholders, the new tax bill will take just as much as is practicable. This year, and as long as the war lasts, will be a period of decreased dividends, not larger ones.

President Roosevelt, in his recent radio speech, said the tax law should be so written that no person will have an income of more than $25,000 a year after his taxes are paid. The new tax bill will not go that far, but will go as near to it as is practicable. Actually, the number of such incomes has already been made small by the existing tax law. Estimates have been made of the amount of money the government would get, additional to what it already gets, if the new tax law lived up, literally, to the standard Mr. Roosevelt proposed. The estimates vary, some saying the amount of money thus procured would pay the government's expenses for four days, others saying twelve days.

Wage Earners Hit

Of the new money created by the government as an incident of war, a large part goes to wage earners having relatively small incomes. The amount of new money that will go to these, additional to what they receive in normal years, is estimated at from five to fifteen billion dollars. Most of this is for the tax collector, virgin soil. Hitherto, this new money could not be taxed—for the good reason that it did not exist. It is this new money that the Ways and Means committee tapped the other day.

Yet many are reluctant, properly, to take a material amount from the new money in the hands of wage earners. Many would prefer they should have the opportunity to keep it—it is their chance to accumulate savings. From this consideration, among others, arises the suggestion of "compulsory savings". The proposal is that wage earners, with everybody else, be required to accept a portion of their remuneration—five per cent on ten or whatever—in the form of war bonds. Thus the government would get money to pay the cost of war—and the wage earners would accumulate savings. The war bonds would be sure to remain in the hands of those who earn them, and be available when the war ends and their incomes be interrupted or reduced.

As an additional advantage, taking money from individuals by means of war bonds, would reduce excess purchasing power, hence help to avert inflation. And prevention of inflation is much in the minds of both the administration and Congress.

Henderson's Office Is Seen To Blame For X-Card Fuss

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 15.—How the brunt of X-card scorn happened to be served solely for the poor bald heads of congressmen is not clear.

The legislators who claimed more than fifty-seven gallons of gasoline was essential to their work claimed nothing more than a similar class of government officials outside of Congress received without asking.

The official automobiles provided for cabinet members and authorities of rank carry this year a special government license plate (no state plate). This plate entitles them to unlimited gas without registration.

Furthermore, all other government employees of any rank using their cars on official business are entitled to X-cards under the regulations.

If any ridicule must be expressed, it would naturally apply to all officials—not only federal, but state, local and foreign diplomatic for they are exempt also.

But what all this argument gets down to is whether citizens, as well as the officials who have obtained X-cards, were justified in their claim that they cannot get along in their work on the fifty-seven gallon limitation of B-3 cards.

Proof Available

There is a way of proving that. Another government department, the Bureau of Internal Revenue, has the goods on the commercial use of motor vehicles. The expense of operation of these vehicles has long been deductible from income tax returns.

If a car is used partly for business and partly for pleasure, only that portion of its operation for business is a deductible cost. The B.I.R. record, therefore is complete.

The government now could easily administer gas justice by checking its record of X-card holders against these income tax records. Some authorities think this check-up would be too severe.

A number of people use their cars in business in ways which the B.I.R. does not accept as a legally justifiable cost deduction. No doubt this is true, but exemptions could be authorized on the basis of other proof for special cases.

B Cards Buried

Senator Prentiss Brown, of Michigan, went to register at the special capitol room, was handed a blank and was filling it out, when it occurred to him to ask:

"Where do you put in the amount of mileage you have to drive?"

The girl attendant said no provision had been made for that as X-cards were being furnished. Brown protested that he only drove about eleven miles a day and wanted a restricted B card. The girl took the request up with her superiors and after five minutes of searching a B-card was discovered.

Other congressmen were asked by newsmen before the trouble started, what cards they had obtained. They said they did not know, pulled out cards which proved to be X's.

From this evidence it is obvious that the registrars at the capitol thought congressmen were entitled to X-cards and were prepared to hand out nothing else.

Same Old Whipping Boy

When the ensuing blame started falling upon them, some congressmen ranted at the press again, the press being the second most popular whipping boy for all complaints on any score.

The truth seemed to be that Henderson's office (not he himself) was responsible because of the confusing stories issued and the method of registration provided for the legislators.

About a week ago some anonymous official at OPA informed the press at a conference that senators and congressmen would get X-cards. But the first day of registration the New York Times carried a story that information at OPA indicated congressmen would not.

Then, after the hullabaloo started, Henderson promised to get out a statement and eventually did—saying what was a plain fact anyway, that congressmen on official business were as much entitled to gas as any government official on similar business.

A few of the grumbling legislators are saying it was all a spite job to put Congress in bad with the country, but not many believe this, and it looks more like a bad job of administration.

Supplementary Plan Disregarded

Administration was faulty in a graver respect. The official regulations said supplementary rationals should be given car users where the gasoline provided by A or B cards is not sufficient to permit a vehicle or boat to be used to the extent necessary to the life or work of those who depend on it.

But the ration cards were not on that basis. They left out consideration of "life" entirely, and restricted "work" to a few exclusive business enterprises including hauling, (no matter what) osteopathy, chiropractic, and others.

No mention was made of farmers, for instance, whose business is pretty important. No mention was made of defense industries.

A foreman in a corset factory could get just as much gas as the foreman of the leading plane factory of the country.

Statement That "Food Will Win War" Has Historical Wisdom behind It

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"Food will win the war and food will dictate the peace." This pronouncement of Secretary of Agriculture Wickard has undoubtedly a great deal of historical wisdom and acumen behind it. Modern historians get pretty far away from the influence of individuals such as Hitler and Mussolini on the determination of history. They are inclined to credit other forces with the changes in empires, the origin of wars, the migration of peoples. It is not difficult to find illustrations of the fact that a nation or a culture can develop only when or where a sufficient supply of surplus of food becomes available. There was never a great outburst of art and literature—at least a systematic outburst—in a starving country. Leisure is necessary to develop the arts, and for leisure a good food supply is necessary.

Fate Sealed by Banquets

At the same time, if culinary art is the only one which is developing in a country, it may lead to quite as serious consequences as if there were no food at all. Thus we find physiologists stating that the Roman banquets probably sealed the fate of the Roman Empire, and in our own day the French cuisine, the French food and wine may have been factors in the fall of France. In short, too much food and too much catering to the appetite can ruin an empire just as surely as they ruin an individual.

As a corollary to this, I find some curious comment made by Dr. Frederick Horzels of the Department of Physiology, University of Chicago. He thinks that two cultures which have enjoyed the longest continuous history without serious interruption, such as the cultures of India and China, depended partially at least on a relatively steady state or balance between the supply and the use of food.

In World War I German resistance cracked partly because of undernourishment due to the food blockade, and shortly after that Russia came close to complete collapse because of famine conditions in that country.

Effect of Starvation Periods. Dr. Horzels' most curious and stimulating suggestion concerns the effect of starvation periods on mental and physical vigor after the starvation period is over. He has had a personal experience of 600 days of fasting during the past thirty-three years and he believes that the most striking after-effects of fasting or food restriction occur between the ages of about 25 and 35. He believes that this would possibly mean that the great victory of the German and Russian military campaigns would manifest itself in those of about 40 to 60 years of age and therefore men now in active control—men who had the experience of starvation or semi-starvation in the days of World War I.

It is true that every physiologist who has ever observed starvation has found a great manifestation of physical and mental vigor when re-alimentation occurs after periods of fasting and food restriction. However, it seems doubtful to me that these effects would begin to manifest themselves twenty years after the starvation period and I suspect that the maintenance of the even level of American nutrition for the last forty years will result in just as much military vigor as that manifested by the Russian and German armies.

Questions and Answers

P. R. W.—I would like to ask your opinion on the subject of bathing during pregnancy. Should one bathe regularly during the entire confinement?

Answer: Yes. The skin performs important functions of excretion during pregnancy and should be kept clean in order to make it efficient. Toward the end of the term a sponge bath is all that is necessary.

Killer whales will attack and smash a small boat, eating whatever in living form falls out. They are so powerful that they can shatter an ice floe a foot and one-half thick by hitting it with their heads.

Gathering orchids in steam-drenched jungles is no slight task. The trees on which they grow may be six feet in diameter, and correspondingly high. They may also be infected by snakes and biting varieties of ants.

Teacher-Pupil Relations Have Been Improved

Instructors More Understanding and Sympathetic to Children

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

During the past few years I have visited in a good many hundred elementary schools scattered through most of the states, in small and larger places. Compared with what I observed fifteen years earlier I drew the following conclusions:

1. The average school supervisor and principal is no longer a frightened person but a welcome guest among her teachers whom she inspires. She is no longer a snooper-vizor but a booster of the best.

2. The growth of friendly relations between teacher and pupils is marked. Most teachers are more understanding and sympathetic to children. More and more teachers are growing aware of the child's feeling as he tries to learn and realize that he learns best when he feels best, is free from fear of ridicule and humiliation, and enjoys successes. However, judging from some tragic letters I must read from parents, we have reason to wish for still more improvement in this direction.

3. Though the average child is set to read from a book too hard for him one can see in practically any elementary school building some teachers who put into the child's hands only the kind of text book he can read successfully. Gradually teachers are coming to the sensible conclusion that no matter in what grade a child happens to be he should be set to learn nothing harder than he can learn successfully.

fully. Gradually, too, teachers are coming to realize that the child needs to learn the letters of the alphabet in order to learn to read and spell. Many a poor speller or poor reader, even in the second or third grade, gets letters confused or does not recognize a number of them. Phonics, too, are coming back. Why did they ever leave? Parents might properly prepare the child for entering school by helping him to recognize the letters of the alphabet, picking them out from pages of books, magazines and newspapers. It can be fun.

4. In the primary grades, teachers are coming to realize that the child needs to learn the letters of the alphabet in order to learn to read and spell. Many a poor speller or poor reader, even in the second or third grade, gets letters confused or does not recognize a number of them. Phonics, too, are coming back. Why did they ever leave? Parents might properly prepare the child for entering school by helping him to recognize the letters of the alphabet, picking them out from pages of books, magazines and newspapers. It can be fun.

5. Many wise teachers are urging children to read to a baby brother or sister at home to amuse him but really to motivate the school child to read better.

Understand Parents

6. Teachers are growing aware that the child is tied by heartstrings to his loved ones and that he brings his home to school with him. They are learning to appreciate and understand parents and to win their cooperation, learning to exercise the nice amenities of social grace toward parents. More parents are trying to be cultivated persons, ladies and gentlemen in relation to teachers.

Sorgo No Solution To Sugar Problem

CHARLESTON, W. Va., (AP)—The old-fashioned cane mill soon may be grinding out more "long sweetening" than ever before in West Virginia, but the State Agriculture Department doesn't expect sorghum molasses to solve the sugar problem. Only a small amount of sorghum syrup, more commonly known as sorghum molasses, has been produced in the past, the department reported.

Although expecting a stimulation of the obscure farm industry under the sugar limitations, the department hastened to point out that "farmers who anticipate the conversion of their sorgho into some solid form of sugar face disappointment."

It was explained that the juice of sorgho contains types of sugar other than the ordinary sugar of commerce.

"How Can BERNSTEIN'S afford the lowered price policy?"

It's a question that's asked us every day—people seem to think there's some magic to our maintaining our high standards of value... at such low prices. Actually, there's no magic at all! Just down-to-earth economics. We've discarded antiquated, old-fashion, ways of doing business and devised new and less wasteful methods. We work closely with leading manufacturers to help keep costs down and take a smaller margin of profit. And not one penny is taken from Labor or from the wages of our Store family in order to effect any of these economies!

What about A&P LOW PRICES

now that everybody is talking about

CEILING PRICES?

- Now, and after May 18th (when ceiling prices become effective), all A&P Super Markets and A&P Food Stores will continue to give you real low prices on fine foods every day, just as they have been doing.
- The new "ceiling price" regulation will not alter in any way A&P's low price policy. This means that every day at A&P you will continue to get the best foods the markets afford at our lowest possible prices.
- And here is another important fact to remember. FOOD PRICES WILL NOT BE IDENTICAL IN ALL FOOD STORES on and after May 18th. Prices will continue to differ in food stores on the same articles — just as they have heretofore.

OUR CUSTOMERS SAVE MONEY

A&P, during the last eight years, has made big reductions in its operating costs. These savings have been passed along to our customers, so that today they have 9c more of every food dollar to spend than they did in 1933.

It is A&P's policy to continue to conduct its business as economically as possible, thus to give you the utmost for every food dollar you spend at A&P Stores.

Tuesday—The Day of Conflict

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON 5-16

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 17 is Matthew 21:23-25:39, the Golden Text being Mark 12:10. "The stone which the builders rejected, the same was made the head of the corner.")

THE DAY of conflict, when our Lord disputed with the scribes and Pharisees, sternly telling them where they erred, in their ways of living and in their thinking. He knew very well that His days on earth were now numbered. His enemies would destroy Him as the person, Jesus, the carpenter, but by so doing would exalt Him to the skies forever.

These elders of the church gathered around Him as He was in the temple, apparently on friendly terms with Him, asking Him questions, which they craftily hoped would anger the people so that they could arrest Him. Their queries and His answers only went to show how inferior they were to Him in holiness and mentality.

At first they asked Him by what authority He taught and who gave Him this authority. They really had a right to ask this, as they were the rulers of the temple. Jesus answered by asking them a question: The baptism of John, whence was it? From heaven or of men?

What could they say? If they said it was from heaven, the natural question rose. Why then did they not believe in him? And if they answered that it was of earth, the people would rise and overcome them, for to the people Jesus was the last of the great prophets. They were stumped, as we say, and admitted they had no answer. Then, said Jesus, I will not answer your question.

Parable of the Two Sons

Then the Lord told them a story which involved another question: A man, He said, had two sons. He asked them to go to work in the vineyard. The first said he would not, but later was sorry and went to work. The second said "I go," but he did not. Which did the will of his father? Naturally the one who worked. The lesson of that parable was that many who thought themselves righteous and kept the letter of the law, did not do the will of the Heavenly Father, but those that at first seemed rebellious and rejected the command, later repented, accepted the Lord and the work assigned them. The first were these same elders of the church who rejected the Master; the second those who believed in Him.

The second parable concerned a man who had a vineyard which he leased to husbandmen to work

$5 Minimum Income Tax Favored By Morgenthau and Other Leaders

By IRVING PERLMETER

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP) — A proposal to put a minimum $5 tax on every person who must file an income tax return, including millions who otherwise would be non-taxable, has been made Secretary Morgenthau of the treasury.

The new plan apparently started out with strong support. Morgenthau said it had the backing of Senator George (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Finance committee, which is the Senate's tax group.

While details of the proposal remained to be worked out the secretary said that it was desirable both to reimburse the treasury for the cost of handling income tax returns and also might raise as much as $100,000,000 of additional revenue to finance the war program.

Cost is Not High

Actually, treasury officials said, it costs only an average of fifty cents to handle a non-taxable income tax return and about $1.50 to handle the taxable returns.

If adopted, the plan will mean a levy of $5 or possibly more on nearly every employed person in the low income brackets. Under tentative schedules of personal exemptions adopted yesterday by the House ways and means committee, returns would be required of all single persons earning $9.60 a week and all family heads making $23 or more per week. The House committee, modifying a previous treasury suggestion, voted to cut the exemptions from $750 to $500 for single persons and from $1,500 to $1,200 for family heads, while leaving the $400 credit for dependents unchanged.

Mentioning the probability that this would force several million persons to file returns who, because of other deductions would pay no tax, Morgenthau said:

May Exceed Five Dollars

"The problem is so vast and so tremendous that we have got to have more and more people pay taxes, if they only pay $5."

The secretary explained that the $5 figure, however, was only an example and what he favored was an "examination fee" of "several dollars."

At first Morgenthau hesitated to give unqualified support to the idea because of reported constitutional obstacles, but his tax advisors informed the press later that there were no legal difficulties.

The secretary did not make clear whether the proposed fee would be a minimum to be paid only by persons who filed income tax returns showing less than a $5 tax, or whether it would be an additional fee to be paid by every one, regardless of other tax liabilities. Aides explained that this matter had not been decided.

If you miss the metal clip that used to hold lead pencil erasers, think that the metal saved would make about 13,000,000 cartridge cases for our soldiers.

TODAY'S VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

LATE PLANTING OF SEEDS IN VICTORY GARDEN

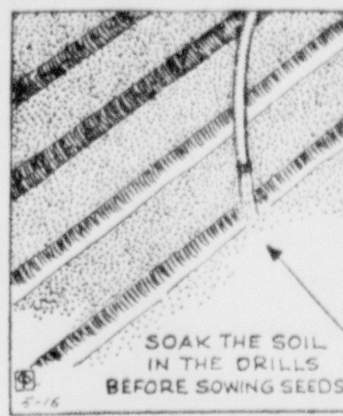

Seeds which are planted as the season advances, when the soil is dry and the sun hot, must be planted deeper than the same seeds planted earlier, when the soil is still moist.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, one method of helping these late seeds to sprout quickly is to soak the soil in the drills either by means of the sprinkling can or hose. When the sprinkling can is used, fill it with warm or boiling water to hasten germination.

Cover over the seeds with fine soil, free of lumps, stones and sticks, and firm it down well onto the seeds. When the soil is quite dry where the seeds are planted, the gardener should step his full weight onto the soil over the seeds. Some gardeners prefer to use a plank and then lightly scratch the surface soil to check evaporation.

Traffic Cops Asked To Speak Softly To Upset Motorists

CHICAGO, May 15 (AP) — Now they're suggesting traffic cops should speak softly to drivers whose minds are teeming with thoughts of war, draft numbers, thinning trees and gasoline rationing.

Gordon Sheehy, acting director of training at Northwestern University's Traffic Institute, offered this advice:

"The officer must learn to disregard remarks made by the motorist due to his upset condition, must avoid argument and keep his temper under control."

He Can't Walk---but How He Works!

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) — "There's no ration card on courage," says Coburn Conover, 38-year-old cripple who hoes his garden from a wheelchair.

Conover, told by doctors his condition is incurable because of a growth on the spine, planted a garden this season because "I'm going to have food for my wife and four children."

He planted a young orchard of peach trees, then went into the woods in his wheel chair and cut posts for a fence around his place. His sons helped build the fence. "I get joy out of working," he says.

Conover, whose ailment started about six years ago, says: "They tell me there's no hope for me—but while there is life, there is hope—and I am hoping, hoping, condition is incurable because of hoping."

For want of a nail

For want of a nail, a shoe was lost
For want of a shoe, a horse was lost
For want of a horse, a rider was lost
For want of a rider, a battle was lost
For want of the battle, a kingdom was lost
All for the want of a horseshoe nail

(Poor Richard's Almanac)

Nothing like that's going to happen to America.

America is going to win its battles : : win them by seeing that the men who need the tools, machines, guns, and supplies HAVE THEM... WHEN

THEY NEED THEM; That means you : : us : :

everyone : : is going to give up a lot of things we enjoyed and took for granted : : because the men who fight : : and the men behind the men who fight : : need those things!

Okay : : we're willing : : GLAD ... to make the sacrifice : : any sacrifice. But how will we make sure that the right men get the things they need? The priority system takes care of that. Our Government knows what's needed : :

knows who makes it : : knows who should have it! The priority system is the Government's way of seeing that the right men get what they need : : when they need it.

The priority system says DEFENSE NEEDS COME FIRST : :
and tells in what order those needs come. Up to now we everyday people haven't been touched much by priorities. America's vast storehouses gave us a big supply in reserve : : on almost everything. The picture's changing rapidly. Right now : : at Wards... and in retail stores all over : : clerks are telling customers, "Sorry, but you'll have to give us a priority rating on this." Some customers, who understand, take it as a matter of course. Others : : who don't understand : : are pretty peeved.

We're printing this ad so customers will understand. When Wards : : or any one : : asks for a priority : :
that's because the Government wants it that way : : wants to make sure that a defense worker isn't being deprived of something he needs
: : needs vitally! And we want to make this clear—although many items are restricted by priorities : : most of the things you need : : clothes, shoes, furniture...

practically everything you use : : you can still buy as before. And you can buy all these things at Wards : : economically : : with assured satisfaction. Not being able to sell tools and equipment except on a priority is going to cost us a lot of business. Well, that's part of our sacrifice

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

IN THE taxi, on her way to the aviation banquet, that little smile still lingered on Tibby's lips. It was a smile that held triumph and satisfaction. She had certainly made Tommy Dare open his eyes; she hoped, by that parting shot that had told him she was not going alone, but had not revealed with whom she was going, she had given him something to think about. And it had served to give Tibby herself a measure of peace that would still an inward trepidation she might otherwise have felt.

She almost felt as sophisticated as she believed she looked, as if she were used to driving about in taxis, attending social functions, mixing with celebrities, being escorted by a man like Wayne Courtwright. Away in one corner of her heart had been a tiny grain of apprehension, because she was not used to all this, but now it was swept away. She might be Cinderella on her way to her first ball, but she felt as if she would be able to act like the princess.

However, although she may have felt that part, Tibby did not look sophisticated. If she had, she would not have had the effect she was to have upon Wayne that evening. He was used to sophisticated ladies; he was bored to death with them. When he saw Tibby, in her lovely white dress, that shining look in her eyes, her cheeks flushed, his heart, that had been bored so long, too, that he almost had forgotten he possessed such an organ, did a somersault; his jaded pulses quickened.

Tibby, in his eyes, looked like love's young dream. She looked like the rosebuds that composed the corsage he had ordered for her, because only such buds, unopened, damp with dew, had, to him, seemed appropriate.

"My dear," he said, hurrying forward to greet her, "I wish there were words to tell you how lovely you are. Words would not do; it would have to be set to music. You are the stars tonight, the crest of an ocean wave, the tenderness of twilight. In brief, Miss Elizabeth Lane, you are almost too beautiful."

"You make me almost believe it," Tibby thanked him demurely from the wisdom of her newly acquired manner. She was not expert at this type of light, yet serious flirtation, or used to being called beautiful. "And thank you for those," she added, touching the dewy rosebuds. "They're so exquisite! And see, she spread her wide skirts, as though about to make him an old-fashioned curtsy, "they match the artificial ones, as if you had known about them."

"I know," he assured her gravely.

that nothing artificial would become you. And these real ones were created just for you. We're sitting at the speakers' table, so I expect we had better go on in, although I doubt if anyone will be able to attend to what is said, with you to feast their eyes upon. . . . Come, my dear." He offered her his arm, as though she were indeed a princess.

She knew, of course, that he was teasing, from the humor about his mouth, although his gray eyes had been almost too somber, as if on guard against the glances of his tongue, for his pulses and his heart were still behaving in this most extraordinary way. It was as if, having been so rudely awakened, they did not mean to settle back to their old passivity, as if he, Wayne Courtwright, had lost his iron control of them.

That seemed ridiculous, improbable, in fact, for Wayne always was in complete control of his emotions; his head always ruled over his heart. He might indulge them—heart and emotions—for a fleeting moment or so, but always they were put back in order the instant he ruled that they should be.

Tonight proved the exception to this rule. It was not just that he had found, the way Tibby looked so disturbing; it was the way she was so young, so earnest, so thrilled. It was seeing things through her bright eyes—the long, candle-lit table, gleaming with crystal and silver, burdened with flowers, the beautiful women and well-groomed men, the excellent service and incomparable food, the low laughter and spontaneous bursts of applause, the voice of a cornet and the shush-shush of dancing feet, the fragrance of a woman's hair so close to his nostrils, the warmth of her slender body held in his arms.

No, Wayne could not remember when he had lived an evening like this—"lived" was the new meaning that this evening, seen through Tibby's eyes, experienced through her senses, held; it had been so long ago, in his own first youth, that this was like returning to a forgotten country, a country one never should have left.

"Having fun?" he asked her, bending his head close to hers, his eyes seeking and holding her glance. He had just reclaimed her for the end of this dance, having had to relinquish her throughout the evening more often than he had liked, although he wanted her to enjoy the popularity that was her due.

"Lots of fun." She nodded her head, her eyes smiling back into his. Fun was not a fitting description—it went with the ordinary sort of good times Tibby was used to. This evening had been exciting, dramatic, a peek into a fairy land. Everything was so right, so perfect, so beautiful; everyone was so charming, so gay. "It's been lovely," she added, on a little sigh, for, being young, an ending always was poignantly sad to Tibby. Why couldn't such loveliness just go on and on?

"Now, Cinderella," he reproved, "don't start listening for the clock to strike 12. Remember I told you you did not have to run away. Or return to the tattered garments of everyday life when the coach and four change into mice again. There is no reason, my dear, why we cannot do this again—and often." His tone, the set of his lips were firm.

The smile still lingered in Tibby's eyes, but she did not nod her head again.

"I guess not," she admitted, but her tone held a shadow of uncertainty. The clock was beginning to strike the midnight hour in Tibby's consciousness. Maybe this one time should be sufficient. Maybe they should not try to repeat it. Repetition seldom contained the same element of delight, just as anticipation usually dimmed reality in comparison.

"That's another agreement—like our being friends," Wayne pressed her closer for a brief moment, as the dream-filled waltz came to an end. Usually he did not regret endings; he was adept at them, often making them serve his purpose, but now he, too, felt a sadness, a sense of reluctance that he must open his arms so that they would be emptied, allowing her to escape from him.

At first he had wanted friendship from Tibby to make her aware of him, as a man. This had been strengthened by her indifference, even her refusal to accept him. Now, after this evening, he knew it was Tibby, herself, that was the challenge. He had to have her friendship. He must win her warm approval, her eager liking. He was aware even that this might lead to more than that. He might, as he had told her, want more of her than mere friendship, much more than that. He might, in her, have found not only a lost country, but a promised land, in that she might be the one woman he would find he had to have.

He had loved other women before. They had stirred his senses, quickened his heart-beat, but not like this, not without his willing it to be so, with his clear consciousness, as well as that other unconscious, uncontrollable self hidden within every man.

He did not think he was in love with Tibby yet, but he knew he might be soon. The amazing part was that, knowing this, he plunged blindly ahead.

He still believed, of course, that he could make the ending when he chose—making it, as well, the one he wanted.

OLD ENGLISH CAKE IS TASTY AND CAN BE MADE WITHOUT SUGAR

At this time of year in pre-war days this old-fashioned dessert was very popular in England. It is much like the famous plum pudding, except that it is baked instead of steamed. Housewives looking for modern, sugarless recipes can make this traditional English cake with sugar substitutes.

Ingredients: Two and one-fourth cups sifted cake flour; two and one-fourth teaspoons double-acting baking powder; one-fourth teaspoon salt; one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg; one and one-fourth teaspoons cinnamon; one-fourth teaspoon cloves; one-half cup shortening; one teaspoon grated lemon rind; one cup light corn syrup; two eggs; one-half cup milk; one teaspoon vanilla.

Directions: Sift the flour but one time. Add the baking powder, salt and spices, and sift ingredients together three times. Cream the shortening with the lemon rind. Add the syrup, stirring well after each addition. Add one-quarter of the flour; beat well. Add the eggs, unbeaten, one at a time and stir each in well. Add the dry ingredients in thirds, alternating with the milk in halves. Then stir in the vanilla. Bake in two eight-inch greased pans thirty minutes or longer in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.).

The Filling: The ingredients are three and one-half tablespoons cornstarch; one cup prune juice; three-fourths teaspoon grated lemon rind; one teaspoon grated orange rind; two teaspoons lemon juice; a pinch of salt; one cup of chopped cooked prunes; two tablespoons of corn syrup. To the cornstarch add the prune juice, lemon juice, orange and lemon rind, and salt. Add the prunes and syrup. Mix well. Cook in double boiler twelve minutes, stirring occasionally.

Cleaning Hint
You can always keep the grids on a sandwich grill clean by wiping off as soon as used, with a slightly used damp cloth. Keep the grill open until perfectly cool and then store covered in a dry place. Wipe quickly with a dry cloth just before using.

BREAKFAST JOINS UP

CORNEB BEEF HASH teamed with pineapple juice.

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER

Wide World Beauty Editor

Now that nutrition is more important than ever for all of us, a good breakfast is the best way to start the day's defense work.

Merely black coffee and fruit juice never rated in grandmother time as a breakfast menu for sturdy folk, and it still is not a very sound or safe foundation for a day of strenuous mental or physical activities.

Chilled pineapple juice makes a splendid eye opener. Grapefruit and seeded white or red cherries make a pleasing two-course served icy-cold. Fresh berries, chilled and garnished by sliced oranges, prunes or apricots, with turn-out easily meal into a feast worth getting up for.

Nutrition courses are pointing out a greater need for cereals for health, and breakfast foods help out easily. Here again variety will appeal to the family and step up their health.

Men May Prepare For Commissions At State College

J. L. Dunkle Announces College Will Participate in Naval Program

FROSTBURG, May 15 — John L. Dunkle, president of Frostburg State Teachers college, has sent letters to all the high school seniors of this area, explaining to them the advantages offered by the Navy's new V-1 program, enabling a high school senior to enlist in the Naval Reserve and at the same time enroll in the college for at least two years.

The letter, according to President Dunkle is intended to have the seniors and their parents consider the great advantages of the V-1 program, enabling young men to serve their country and at the same time to serve themselves.

Emphasizing the great need for college trained men to accept officer positions in the Navy, the letter says, Secretary Frank Knox stated recently, "we need to enlist 80,000 young men between the ages of 17 and 20 in the coming weeks. . . and offer them the opportunities of continuing in college for at least two years in order to provide for future officers for the United States Navy."

The Army Air Corps and the United States Marines have also made provisions for young men to prepare themselves for special services in their ranks.

In order to meet the program of the navy for trained personnel, State Teachers college has accelerated its program by continuing classes throughout the summer; has added essential mathematics courses, and has special advisory service to all new students who are interested in taking advantage of the opportunities offered.

NEW YORK, May 15 (AP)—Aside from an assortment of weak aviation issues, stocks generally exhibited quiet recovery leanings in today's market.

he list, as a whole, shifted to the upside at the start. While dealings were slack throughout, the majority of leaders closed around the day's best levels with advances of fractions to a point or more.

he principal air transport stocks dropped 1 to 3 points or so when it was announced the army would take over and actually operate or control all domestic passenger planes as a war measure. Transfers totaled 257,120 shares compared with 278,857 Thursday.

Among the good rail performers was Great Northern preferred which was up 1½. Directors declared a dividend of $1 on this issue against fifty cents disbursed in December.

Prominent on the revival were American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Goodrich, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, du Pont, International Harvester, Texas Co., General Foods, U. S. Distributing preferred and Continental Can.

Air line issues on the outside included those of American, Eastern, United and Transcontinental & Western. Douglas Aircraft was off a point.

Improved in the curb were Lake Shore, American Gas, American Cyanamid, Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Sherwin Williams. Turnover here aggregated $46,525 shares versus 55,585 yesterday.

Advances of fractions to a point or more in a selected group of rails helped the bond market keep its balance.

Changes in the general corporate list were small either way, however, and the trading pace continued slack as evidenced by a total turnover of $6,917,000, par value, against $6,322,600 on Thursday.

U. S. governments were quiet but steady.

Stanwyck-McCrea Film Sure-Fire Hit

Three great stars who were first seen together in Cecil B. DeMille's "Union Pacific" are again united in the heart-stirring picture which starts today at the Strand theater. "The Great Man's Lady" co-stars Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea with Brian Donlevy in support—a trio of movie mighties to quicken the pulse of any film fan.

The picture itself is a pulse-quickener, if ever there was one. The story covers a span of many years, going back as far as 1848 when Miss Stanwyck as a conventionally-reared girl of sixteen runs off and marries Joel McCrea. He takes her out west where he hopes to build a great city on the barren land he has inherited.

Crossing their path is Brian Donlevy, a gambler uniquely honest. He falls in love with Barbara and is unwittingly instrumental in coming between her and McCrea. This does not keep her from setting McCrea on the path to the realization of his dreams. How she, McCrea's wife, finds herself living in the shadowy recess of his life while he rises to magnificent heights, makes "The Great Man's Lady" thrilling, unusual entertainment. The three stars portray people you will love and remember for a long time.

The supporting cast is excellent. Katharine Stevens as a young girl biographer is someone to keep an eye on. Thurston Hall, Lloyd Corrigan, Etta McDaniel are fine, as is Lucien Littlefield in the role of newspaper editor.

Red Skelton Woos, Wows in New Comedy

Carrying on his successful career as a top comic and also a romantic hero, Red Skelton sings and wins the girl in M-G-M's musical, "Ship Ahoy," which is currently showing at the Maryland theater. Eleanor Powell, Skelton and the Tommy Dorsey swing band lead the stellar cast.

Miss Powell is seen as a G-girl in the musical, with Skelton as her hypochondriac sweetheart. Both become involved with foreign agents, dangerous plots and hilarious mix-ups. The action takes place on a showboat bound for southern waters. Interspersed between the plot maneuvers are four elaborate production numbers in which the dancing star is featured in a Spanish bullfight number, a Morse code tap a novel soft shoe dance, and an Hawaiian chant.

Music provided by the Dorsey swingers, with Skelton singing both "Poor You" and "I'll Take Tallulah." In addition to the stars are Bert Lahr and Virginia O'Brien with twenty-seven of Hollywood's most glamorous chorus girls heading the dance ensemble.

Gangland Thriller Showing at Liberty

One of the most exciting rough-and-tumble gang fights ever screened, leads up to the surprise climax of RKO Radio's "The Mayor of 44th Street," now showing at the Liberty theater, a gangland thriller with Freddy Martin's sweet swing providing the musical setting.

With a score of individual grudge battles raging around them, George Murphy and Richard Barthelmess vent their well-nourished hate in a furious encounter.

When it was all over Director Alfred Green patted the principals on the back. "I've directed a lot of fights in my time," said Green, "but this one tops them all. I wouldn't want to meet either of you boys in a dark alley."

Actor Bill Boyd Likes Globe Trotting

William Boyd, two-gun hero of the wild and woolly West, is thinking of buying himself a steamer trunk and plastering it all over with labels.

"Why not?" said Boyd. "It used to be that Westerns were always set in the West. Today a cowboy actor

ROMANTIC TEAM

George Murphy and Anne Shirley are co-starred in RKO Radio's musical melodrama "The Mayor of 44th Street," now showing at the Liberty. This is the first time that these two talented stars have been teamed romantically. In addition, Freddy Martin and his band and Joan Merrill add much to the production in their presentation of the musical interludes.

may find himself before the cameras in an Arabian burnose, dressed up like an Argentine gaucho or tricked out like a lumberjack.

Boyd, better known as "Hopalong Cassidy," cowboy super sleuth, leaves the cattle country again in "Riders of the Timberline," Paramount's newest "Hoppy" thriller now at the Embassy theater. With his sidekicks, Brad King and Andy "California" Clyde, he travels into the timber country to bring retribution to a gang of saboteurs.

"Hoppy's" last picture, "Outlaws of the Desert," was set in Arabia and the three musketeers of the mesquite. "Hoppy," Brad King and "California," did their sleuthing among the hooded riders of the mystic East. Not so long ago, "Hoppy" and his pals made a picture called "Law of the Pampas" in which he journeyed to the Argentine and wiped out a gang of tall garden-grass desperadoes.

For, though not yet of age, Halldent of economic conditions. He is has already married; has written also an investor in income-bearing one successful comedy scenario with property.

Garden Western Stars Roy Rogers

Carol Hughes is a girl who is fanatical in her enthusiasms! During her high school days the young star took up sharpshooting with such a vengeance that she sacrificed her hair, hatches, using her lunch money to buy shells!

Carol is cast opposite Roy Rogers in his latest Republic western, "The Border Legion," which is now showing at the Garden theater. George "Gabby" Hayes has a prominent supporting role, as do Maude Eburne, Joe Sawyer and Jay Novello.

Joseph Kane served in the dual capacity of producer-director.

"Dead End Kid" is a very good off-stage description of Hunt Hall, one of the famed quartet currently starring in Universal's "Mob Town" at the

THE OTHER MAN

The other man in the screen life of lovely Barbara Stanwyck is Brian Donlevy. He gives her Joel McCrea some pretty stiff competition in Paramount's romantic drama, "The Great Man's Lady," which opens today at the Strand. The three stars were last seen together in Cecil B. # C. Walter Baker Appeals Decision Of Circuit Court

Contents Embezzlement Indictment Based on Hearsay Testimony

Appeals to the Court of Appeals of Maryland were filed yesterday in Allegany county circuit court on behalf of C. Walter Baker, Hagerstown attorney, convicted on two counts of embezzlement here last week and sentenced to two years in the Maryland House of Correction.

The appeals and motions to arrest judgment were filed by Baker's attorneys, Leo Weinberg, Frederick and William A. Gunter, Cumberland.

"Hearsay" Testimony

Weinberg alleges in one appeal that the indictment returned by a Washington county grand jury against Baker in the case of E. Ross Brewer, Arlington, Va., a former Hagerstown resident, is "founded upon wholly insufficient and illegal evidence, in fact, upon hearsay testimony."

Neither Brewer nor his wife, Mrs. Harris H. Brewer, ever appeared before the grand jury, the appeal avers, adding that the only information came from "others who had no direct knowledge of the subject matter of the indictment" on which Baker was convicted of embezzling $1,000.

In the second appeal, against conviction of Baker for embezzlement of $2,000 in Pennsylvania railroad bonds from Miss Cassie E. E. Albert, 75-year-old Hagerstown spinster, Weinberg contends that the charges in the indictment are not sustained.

Denies Embezzling Bond

The appeal relates that if there is an embezzlement, which Baker denies, it is of the proceeds of the bonds and not of the bonds themselves.

This difference, the appeal alleges further, is "fatal and in direct conflict" with the allegations of the indictment and "fails to sustain the charges."

Praises Court

Baker declares in his appeal that he "relieves the court of any willful error" and that he has "had faith in and admiration for the superior service of Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and for Associate Judges William A. Huster and Joseph D. Misch."

He declares further that he is "happy to testify that there was no concealment of evidence" by Charles F. Wagaman, Washington county state's attorney, who has made "manifest his efficiency, his unremitting zeal and his unflinching desires."

About his attorney, Baker asserted that he "likewise wishes to testify to the like acumen, the oratorical power and the creative capacity" of Weinberg who "volunteered his services."

'Step-off' Dinner To Precede Drive For Chest Funds

Affair Will Be Held Tuesday at 'Y'; Campaign Opens Wednesday

Active solicitation of funds in Cumberland's seventeenth annual Community Chest campaign will get under way Wednesday morning following a "step-off" dinner-meeting to be held Tuesday night at Central Y.M.C.A.

All sections of the campaign are scheduled to attend, make final preparations and receive pledge cards and report envelopes. The meeting, which begins at 6 o'clock, will be over by 8 p. m.

The classified section of the campaign began active solicitation of prospects Thursday morning after a separate "step-off" dinner held Wednesday night, but members also will attend the Tuesday night sessions.

First reports of the campaign will be made at noon Thursday in the gymnasium of Central Y.M.C.A. and subsequent reports will be made at noon daily, except Saturday and Sunday, until the campaign is completed.

J. William Groves, president of the A.P.O. Allegany Trades Council, revealed yesterday that his organization "this year is backing the Community Chest." A majority of members are in favor of the campaign, Groves said, and Tuesday night contributed to it.

City Will Retain Tax Rate of $1.10

The mayor and city council met in executive session yesterday morning and tentatively agreed to further wage increases for more city employees.

The problem of trying to spread possible wage increases fairly among the lower-paid employees as well as meeting increased needs of the Fire and Police Departments because of the war appear to be offering the most trouble.

The Council has evidently decided on a $1.10 tax rate as all of yesterday's discussions as well as those of Wednesday were based on the amount of revenue that rate will produce.

Anticipated income and surplus are listed as $655,130. On the other side of the picture $470,731.17 will be for general purposes and $184,398.83 for debt service.

ATTEND CHARTER PRESENTATION—Shown here are a group of officers and others who participated in the program Wednesday night when Victory No. 80 of the Nomads of Avrudaka, an auxiliary of the Dramatic Order of Knights of Khorassan, received its national charter and inducted thirty members at formal ceremonies.

Ruth Lee Thompson Wins Second Prize At University Show

Her Exhibit of Daily Food Requirements Part of Exposition

Miss Ruth Lee Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alban C. Thompson, 208 Saratoga street, won second prize yesterday at the "Consumer Education Day" exposition held in the Women's Field House at the University of Maryland.

Miss Thompson won her award for an exhibit of daily food requirements. The exposition was attended by hundreds of Maryland high school students and housewives.

Miss Jane Park, of Lonaconing, also won a prize for her exhibit in the group, dealing with home management, recreation, and conservation of cooking time.

Movies were shown every hour during the day giving tips on marketing, sewing and vitamins. Twenty-two booths demonstrated various methods of conserving food, clothing and household equipment.

The exhibit was primarily designed for university coeds, and Maryland and District of Columbia high school students and housewives, the faculty director, Miss Edna B. McNaughton said, but many men students of the university attended.

Decontamination, Bomb Demonstrations Will Be Given on May 19

A practical demonstration on decontamination work and an incendiary bomb exhibit will be presented Tuesday, May 19, at 7:30 p. m. in Constitution park, it was announced yesterday by W. Arnold Gunther, director of the civilian defense decontamination corps.

The demonstration will be put on by members of the decontamination squad from Group 1, West Side, headed by Donald A. LaCoss, chemist of the Celanese Corporation of America.

Oil will be substituted for chemicals and will be spread over a certain area to be decontaminated by members of the group.

Dr. R. W. Work, chief chemist of the Celanese plant, will be in charge of the incendiary bomb exhibit.

Gunther announces that all members of the decontamination corps are urged to attend the meeting and will assemble at 7 p. m. in the city hall before going to the park.

Resolution Urges City To Increase Library Budget

Living Costs and Addition of More Rooms Stressed by Directors

A substantial increase in the appropriation for the Cumberland Free Public Library is urged in a resolution passed by the board of directors and forwarded to the mayor and city council, it was announced yesterday by Albert A. Doub, Sr. president.

The resolution states that it is the sense of the board of directors of the Cumberland Free Public Library that the absolute necessities of the library are such that annual appropriation from the mayor and city council should be substantially increased beyond that of last year and that the mayor and council be respectfully urged to make such increase in the budget for the current year.

Must Expend Larger Sums

Directors are aware that the mayor and city council have never failed to meet an emergency for the institution, the resolution states, and it is the hope of the directors that the city fathers continue to manifest the loyalty and vision which have made the library an educational opportunity for the citizens of Cumberland.

The resolution pointed out that the cost of living has greatly increased in the past year and the library must expend larger sums for good service to the public. It further states that valuable books, newspaper files and periodical files require the addition of more rooms and the equipment for proper care and maintenance of the same.

Ask $2,500 Increase

Library officials recently requested an increase of $2,500 in the annual appropriation of $10,000 from the city.

It is planned to spend approximately $1,500 extra for more books for children while it will cost about $1,000 for repairs and furniture, light, heat and janitor service.

Ex-Movie Star Explains Film

Lieut. James Stewart, famed movie star, was narrator for the film and explained the team work necessary in flying the big Flying Fortress. He said the pilot is not the most important person as far as the Air Corps was concerned but that nine men fly the huge bombers and each one has a definite job to do if the Axis is to be defeated.

Stump said another "refresher" course will be started within the next two weeks with about thirty-five men enrolled. After taking the thirteen-weeks' course they will be given mental and physical examinations and if successful will be enlisted as aviation cadets.

Aviation cadets receive $75 a month while training and upon being commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Corps will receive $245 a month and maintenance.

Will Elect Officers

Officers of the association will be elected at the business session scheduled for 2 p. m. Tony J. Durso, Washington, D. C. is president of the state organization.

Arrangements are being made to take women guests on a sight-seeing tour in the afternoon.

Members of the committee on arrangements are Ray Nine, chairman; Roy Wilson, Graham Shafer and William C. Brant, of Cumberland; Frank Greco, Frostburg; Arthur Blair, Midland, and David Smith, Lonaconing.

Nine Men Enlist As Aviation Cadets At the Elks Home

Five Complete 'Refresher' Course; Board Conducts Examinations

Nine young men were enlisted last night as United States Army aviation cadets by the Aviation Cadet Examining Board of the Third Corps Area, Baltimore.

Five of the men enlisted completed the "refresher" course sponsored by B. P. O. Elks lodges of Cumberland and Frostburg. They were Earl F. Brown, 443 Columbia street; Percy L. Williams, Frostburg; Robert A. Mathews, LaVale; Beverly A. Hayes, Frostburg; and Curtis L. Hinkle, 1510 Frederick street.

The other four men took both the mental and physical examinations yesterday without previous preparation and passed. They were Robert R. Wilkins, 415 Louisiana avenue; Saulley B. Friddle, Moorefield, W. Va.; Ralph F. Pranta, 322 Bedford street; and Charles A. Morgan, Frostburg.

One other man passed his tests and was enlisted recently and is awaiting a call to service. He is Andrew Wilson, of Calvin street, this city.

Seven of the men examined last night passed their mental tests but failed the physical examinations due to minor defects. They will be given an opportunity to correct these defects and if they pass will be enlisted, Stump said.

Give Oath of Allegiance

First Lieut. Robert D. Redding, president of the board, read the articles of war to the men and First Lieut. Richard W. Kiefer, recorder for the board, gave the oath of allegiance to the men. First Lieut. Charles H. Whalen, medical officer, gave the physical tests.

Sgt. John Seals, chief clerk; Sgt. Horace Pierce, clerk, and Corp. James Morree, medical assistant, also aided in the tests and enlistment of the nine men.

Lester Deenen, exalted ruler of Cumberland Lodge No. 63, B.P.O. Elks, gave a short address preceding the enlistment of the men and the showing of a film on the Air Corps. Charles M. Stump, chairman of the War committee of Cumberland Lodge No. 63, said nineteen Allegany county men who took the "refresher" course are now in the Air Corps.

The sound movie entitled "Winning Your Wings" was shown by Sgt. Clarence Blehn, local recruiter. The movie was a pictorial record of the life of an aviation cadet and the important part aviation will play in winning the war against the Axis.
